The Squire's Sweetheart

— BY —
KATHARINE TYNANWARD, LOCK & CO., LIMITED
London, Melbourne, and Toronto

Pushing on again, he found himself among stubble fields, by a grove in which the starlings were chattering like a cascade of hurrying water. Just beyond the grove he was aware of Mr. Langton's lean, erect figure coming towards him. He had time to note what ravages this last trouble had wrought in a face already thin and careworn, before Mr. Langton recognized him. So absorbed was he in his own heavy thoughts that he had all but passed when their eyes met.

A wintry smile came to the elder man's face, and he lifted up his hands with an effort at humorous amazement.

"My dear boy," he said, "I might have guessed that you would come. But—I am so sorry it is of no use. Margaret will not let you have her address."

"I did not ask that she should." A slight cloud that had rested on the natural brightness of Hilary's face lifted. "I did not ask for her address. I should despise myself if I worried her. I came to see you. We are, in a sense, in the same boat. I needed sympathy."

Mr. Langton's hand went out and clasped Hilary's warmly.

"That is good of you dear fellow," he said. "Not that it is true. God forbid you should be in the same boat as I. I couldn't help it, indeed I could not. When Margaret's letter came to me saying that her mother was dying, steadily and surely, what could I do but the thing I did? I have only one thing to blame myself for—that I consented, because she was frightened, poor soul, to doing it furtively, so to speak. She took a deal of persuasion before she would consent to save her life. The thing ought to have been done differently; but it was her timidity."

"Don't blame yourself, sir, even remotely. You did only what you should do, what any man had to do who would lift his head up among his fellow men."

Neither spoke about the ordeal that lay ahead, from which Lady South was to be saved.

"Now you are come, are you going to stay?" Mr. Langton asked, as Hilary turned with him and they met the sea wind.

"As long as you stay, sir, if I am not a trouble to you."

"I go back to London in a fortnight from now. I shall be very glad for you to stay. Where do you put up? At the Splendide?"

"I have no use for the Splendide, however much it may be misallied. You are at the Hotel de la Marine. They have no room for me under their roof. I have already made the acquaintance of M. and Madame Dufour. I am to sleep in the Chateau."

"I don't like the Chateau much; it is not healthy. I should think a depressing place. But till Mrs. Lloyd and her daughter leave there will be no room in the Marine. Why not get a bedroom in the village?"

"I need only sleep at the Chateau. It will do me well enough. I have sent in a woman to scrub the floor of my bedroom and clear out a lot of the rubbish. I hope the Dufours will not mind."

"They hardly ever go into the Chateau. I don't think they like the place. They praise it to cancel their dislike. It wants the fresh air of heaven let into it. I should cut down all that dense thicket of trees with its undergrowth."

"They were on the top of the hill now, the sand dunes stretching away below them, the squat Norman tower of the church and its leaning crosses just visible amid the shifting colors of the dunes, the sheep mere blobs, the red roofs of the village in relief against the background of sand and sea."

"A sinister looking place that," said Hilary with a nod of his head towards the farm they were passing.

"Yes, with a sinister history. No one from the villages round will pass it, if they can help it, not even in broad daylight. The old shepherd out there takes a mile of a round rather than pass Les Peupliers. A horrid place!"

"They seem a superstitious lot about here."

"All peasants are superstitious. I'm afraid I've been rather gloomy. Wait till you meet Mrs. Lloyd. She knows pretty well the whole history of this coast. She'll tell you some eerie stories; but she has so breezy a personality that she does not depress."

As they went down the hill from the farm house, suddenly they were arrested by something like a cry on the wind that followed them. They stopped short, looked at each other, and turned about to stare at the solitary farm house. There was no repetition of the cry. The farm house lay a dark shape against the gold and green of the sky, an image of loneliness on the wide stretch of the dunes.

"Did you hear a cry?" they asked each other. Both thought they heard it, but now there was not a sign of life. They must have fancied it. Was the place laying its eerie spells upon them?

They went on again after a little pause. "No one would be surprised to hear that we had heard strange sounds from Les Peupliers," said Mr. Langton, as they went down the hill. "A good many people would be surprised that we had the temerity to take the way past it, especially with the twilight coming as it is coming now. It is a horrid place. It might well be haunted."

The salle a manger of the Hotel de la Marine was a cheerful place to come into. A bright fire was glowing on the hearth, and the tables were set for dinner. Monsieur bustled out to meet them, full of cheerful bits of gossip picked up during the day. Two Monsieurs had gone to the Splendide. They should have come to the Marine, where Madame's cooking and the excellent company would have made them perfectly happy, while at the Splendide—Words failed Monsieur as he shrugged his shoulders and lifted his eyes and his hands to heaven.

M. Ilari—it was not easy for M. Dufour to pick up the first of the two names he found on the new guest's luggage—would have plenty of time to display to Mr. Langton his chambre a lit at the Chateau before dinner was ready. Monsieur then made a discovery. M. Ilari's portmanteau had not yet been carried over to the Chateau. He would bring it directly, with a supply of towels and some other things. M. Ilari might need. Hilary picked up the portmanteau himself, declining to trouble Monsieur; received the towels, a minute cake of soap, and little lamp, from his host's hands, while the latter protested volubly that he could not dream of allowing M. Ilari to carry the things, ultimately giving up his opposition with a remarkable suddenness.

The two men went across to the Chateau together. The path through the dense wood was so dark, although the sky was yet light over the sea, that they had to tread warily, and were grateful to Monsieur that he had lit a little swinging lantern and given it to Mr. Langton to carry. It might have been the light that set the creatures to stir in the dense cover of the wood. A bird fluttered; something scurried, with a tiny shriek; the whole place seemed full of stealthy rustlings and movements. "I always think this scrap of wood smells like the jungle," said Mr. Langton, as he stumbled over a projecting root of a tree. "I have known this place for some time, though I have never slept in the Chateau du Bois. But it is full every summer of prosaic English people, with whom one would think nothing eerie could inhabit. Of course there is the crowd. Would you not like to go to the Splendide tonight, or to a lodging in the village? Even I find this place nervy."

"I shall sleep like a top, I assure you," said Hilary. "I have never known what it is to have nerves. The wood ought to be cut down. It is probably a perfect charnel house of bones of small birds and beasts." The door of the Chateau stood open. They went upstairs, passing one open door after another, showing a yawning blackness beyond. A cheerful light came out to meet them as they approached the room which Hilary was to occupy. Margot had been there and had done her work thoroughly. The floor was bare and new-scrubbed; all the draperies were gone; the window showed a clear half square of light where the upper part looked above the trees; the fire had burned up and illuminated the room to its distant corners.

A Saner Path

U.S. and Britain Join Hands to Set the World on a New Path

It is not democracy alone that is imperilled by Prussianism; it is civilization itself. What the reconquered portions of France are today, so any part of the world may be, unless the nations after the war can set some limit to the unscrupulous use of military power by Germany, America, while preparing to wage the present struggle with all her might, looks beyond it to the prospect of a happier dispensation in which all countries may find security. That certainly is an inspiration that enlists the full strength of British sentiment. Together the United States and the British empire can go a long way towards realizing it; and the noblest outcome of their present close association ought to be, and will be, not merely the achievement of victory, but the hope of setting the world on a new and saner path.—London Daily Mail.

Note and Comment

It doesn't make any difference how rich a man is there is always something he can't afford.

Lots of machine collectors in town now, attracted, no doubt, by the size of the crop being threshed in this district. What a relief it will be to all of us when conscription takes them up! And won't the Kaiser make for the tall timbers when he hears that a battalion of collectors is coming over to pester him?
—Borderline Budget.

Samson made a splendid showing, Hercules' feats were fine; But history tells of Caesar throwing A bridge across the Rhine.

After several unsuccessful attempts, Monitor will, at last, have a Curling and Skating Rink that any town should be proud of. The Organization was formed this week, and the following officers elected: Joe Hamer, Pres. & Gen. Mgr.; A. J. Deadmarsh, Sec-Treas.; A. L. Todd, Con. Engr.; J. Hayes, A. Christensen and L. B. Larder Entertainment Committee.

The committee is planning several entertainments for the coming season in order to help defray expenses and expect the whole-hearted support of our community in helping to make this undertaking a complete success.

Ottawa, Oct. 4. It is now known that, so far back as June, 1917, the executive committee of the Patriotic Fund had decided to grant the same assistance to the men selected under the Military Service Act as to the men already enlisted, in the matter of payments to dependents. On June 14, 1917, at a meeting in Ottawa, the committee passed a resolution providing that, in the event of the Government's passing and enforcing legislation providing for a measure of selective drafting, the dependents of the men so selected "be entitled to the same assistance as the dependents of the men who have volunteered." Under the Military Service Act of 1917, of course, with the first class unmarried men and widowers without children, not a great many will receive aid, but each case will be considered carefully.

With assistance, where needed, from the Patriotic Fund, the men under the draft will be the same as the men already enlisted. Their status is assured.

CAR OF APPLES

The Stoneham U. F. A. has ordered a car of Washington apples and they will be ready for distribution, at the Farmers' Elevator, in about ten days.

Owing to the attempt of the B. C. fruit trust to make a hold-up in prices, the United Grain Co. decided to purchase their apples in Washington. Members, and others, wanting any apples can buy them at the new elevator, and the price will be $1.55 per single box, $1.90 in lots of 5 or more.

HAVE YOU A BAD SORE?

If so, remember these facts—Zam-Buk is by far the most widely used balm in Canada! Why has it become so popular? Because it heals sores, cures skin diseases, and does what is claimed for it. Why not let it heal your sore?

Remember that Zam-Buk is altogether different to the ordinary ointments. Most of these consist of animal fats. Zam-Buk contains no trace of any animal fat, or any mineral matter. It is absolutely herbal.

Remember that Zam-Buk is at the same time healing, soothing, and antiseptic. Kills poison instantly, and all harmful germs. It is suitable alike for recent injuries and diseases, and for chronic sores, ulcers, etc. Test how different and superior Zam-Buk really is. All druggists and stores at 50c. box. Use also Zam-Buk Soap. Relieves sunburn and prevents freckles. Best for baby's bath. 25c. tablet.

Shell Explosions Cause Skin Diseases

Dermatology of War Differs From That of Peace, Says Medical Man

According to the Paris correspondent of the Medical Board, who under date of July 30, writes on "Dermatology of the War," skin diseases vary greatly in war and peace. Exposure to the shock of explosions has been responsible also for cases of psoriasis, a disease characterized by an eruption of circumscribed rounded patches of a red color covered with adherent white scales. Here is part of his letter:

"The diseases of the campaigning soldier differ considerably in nature and frequency from those encountered in times of peace. In the dermatological clinics of the Paris hospitals before the war one would encounter as the most frequent form of dermatosis, eczema scabiei (itch) psoriasis, and tuberculous trouble under lupus or varicose forms. Today eczema, tubercles and scabies are rare, being replaced in order of frequency by phthiriasis (parasites), eczema, and trichophtingus diseases (diseases affecting the hair), oftentimes marked by varied peculiarities.

"Tubercles and tuberculosis of the skin are rare. This is not astonishing when one is acquainted with the rigorous care with which tuberculous subjects were eliminated by the medical examiners as the soldiers presented themselves for active service. The army life and exercise in the open air; the nourishment, good in quality and quantity, have constituted great obstacles to the development of the attenuated forms of tuberculosis of the skin.

Procrastination

Effort is chiefly lost through misapplication. The men who know the most haven't done as much for the world as the men who do the most. "Waiting until tomorrow," has destroyed more businesses, ruined more lives, and annihilated more armies than the power of enmity.—Herbert Kaufman.

The Man Behind the Plow

Great Services Rendered in Time of National Crisis

That country gentlemen have made mistakes in the past in their attitude towards their land is true enough, but during this time of crisis they have been in all respects great servants of the common good, those above military age serving all day long as recruits, and the others serving in the ranks when they could not at once serve as officers. The yeomen of England; and landlords of the manors, have ever had in war the same tradition of public service, and for this reason in his History of Henry VII, Lord Bacon speaks with the utmost enthusiasm of the hereditary power that Henry gained for the state by establishing on the land men of some substance, that might keep hands and servants, and set the plough going on. This did wonderfully concern the might and manner of the kingdom, to have farms as it were of a standard, sufficient to maintain an ably body out of poverty, and did in effect amortise a great part of the lands of the kingdom unto the hold and occupation of a yeomanry or middle people, of a condition between gentlemen and cottagers or peasants." From this Tudor wisdom, a country family took its origin, and as Bacon puts it, "Thus did the king secretly sow Hydras' teeth; whereupon, according to the poet's fiction, should rise up armed men for the service of the kingdom."—Saturday Review.

WOMEN! IT IS MAGIC! LIFT OUT ANY CORN

Apply a few drops then lift corns or calluses off with fingers—no pain

Just think! You can lift off any corn or callus without pain or soreness.

A Cincinnati man discovered this ether compound and named it freezone. Any druggist will sell a tiny bottle of freezone, like here shown, for very little cost. You apply directly to the corn or callus. Instantly the soreness disappears. Then shortly you will find the corn or callus so loose that you can lift it right off.

Freezone is wonderful. It dries instantly. It doesn't eat away the corn or callus, but shrivels it up without even irritating the surrounding skin.

Hard, soft or corns between the toes, as well as corns on calluses, lift right off. There is no pain before or afterwards. If your druggist hasn't freezone, tell him to order a small bottle from you from his wholesale drug house.

How "Sammees" Originated

Just how the Yankee troops in France got their nickname, "Sammees" now appears. The welcoming French, shouted enthusiastically, "Vive les amis!" pronounced "Vive les sammees!" thought that instead of cheering their arriving friends the crowds were giving them a nickname referring back to Uncle Sam. It was a queer philosophical incident, and it will be all the queerer if the nickname sticks.—Boston Globe.

Marvels of the Telephone

Listening to the Atlantic and Pacific Simultaneously

A remarkable demonstration of the telephone was recently made for the benefit of Lord Northcliffe and his party. A point of historical interest was the listening by the distinguished visitor to the roar of the Atlantic and Pacific oceans simultaneously. A telephone was connected to the transatlantic line reaching to San Francisco where the line had for the occasion been extended to a telephone transmitter on the shore of the Pacific at the Golden Gate. Another telephone was connected to a line extending to a transmitter on the shore of the Atlantic. Thus by placing his ear to one receiver and then to the other, Lord Northcliffe was able to hear first one ocean and then the other, and by placing a receiver to either ear he was able to hear both oceans simultaneously.

"Silver Bullet" Very Effective

How to Strike the Hun a Severe Blow

It is not necessary to travel to Europe and enter the trenches in order to strike a blow against the enemy of civilization. Some very effective work can be done at home. Of course, the most meritorious service is that done by the brave men who don the khaki and go into the trenches. They risk their lives and endure separation from all they hold dear. But this does not mean that fighting with the gun or bayonet is the only way to make the enemy reel backwards and finally collapse.

Money is a weapon of terrific force in modern war, much more powerful than it ever was in the past. This means that Germany is more vulnerable to the hammering of money, comparatively speaking, than to the hammering of steel shells. As Lloyd George said many months ago the "silver bullet" will finally win the war and it goes without saying that the more silver bullets there are to be discharged, the sooner the war will end.

Dominion of Canada war savings certificates are Canada's "silver bullets." Each one of them is aimed straight for the Kaiser's heart.

Land for Veterans

In the British house of commons Major Hunt complained that the board of agriculture was not making proper provision for the land settlement of sailors and soldiers after the war. He emphasized that the facilities which Australia and Canada are providing would open land to the men from the United Kingdom besides those from the Dominions.

Mr. Winfrey, under-secretary for agriculture, said the board had already secured practically the whole of 8,000 acres which the act of 1915 empowered it to purchase for this purpose. It might be necessary to ask additional powers after the recess. He was of the opinion that the question of capital was not difficult, as many ex-soldiers had a small capital besides their pensions and were able to take up small holdings.

To safeguard the child from damage that worms cause, use Miller's Worm Powders. The medicine takes excellence for children. These powders will clear the system entirely of worms, will regulate and stimulate the organs injuriously affected by the worms, and will encourage healthful operation of the digestive processes. As a vermifuge it cannot be surpassed in effectiveness.

Says Hindenburg a Colossal Failure

Col. Repington, military critic of the London Times, reviewing the last year of the war, declares Hindenburg is a colossal failure incapable of devising any fresh strategy against the great allied powers, unable to take advantage of the gift of the Russian revolution which fortune offered him.

On the west front the German armies had not won a battle in three years but have always gone back.

Full Weight of Hostility

China's declaration of war against Germany will not greatly affect the course of the war. It may incite the Berlin press to fresh expressions of contempt and abuse. But in the end Germany will be made to feel the full weight of the hostility it has aroused throughout the world by its mad policy of the past three years. If there are any far-seeing statesmen in Germany they must realize that when it enters upon the work of reconstruction after the war it will have no friends left anywhere, and its commerce with foreign countries will be in such a condition as to minimize its powers of recuperation.—New York World.

Poultry Disease Preventable

War Conditions Make It Imperative That Farmers Keep Chickens From Dying

At least fifty per cent. of the chickens, young ducks and turkeys and ten per cent. of the adult birds die each year from diseases, many of which are preventable. This is an annual national loss of probably millions of dollars that could be avoided to a large extent.

War conditions make it imperative that farmers and poultrymen, as far as possible, stop this enormous loss and in order to assist in this connection Dr. Wickware suggests that every breeder pay strict attention to the general conditions of his flock in order that any ailing birds may be immediately isolated. When anything unusual is noted in the flock, it is advisable to place the affected individual in separate quarters. If within a short time recovery does not take place, it is unwise to destroy the fowl without first ascertaining the cause of the disorder. The prevalence of disease is more often the cause of the poultry-keeper's failure than is the lack of practical knowledge. The extreme importance of keeping the quarters clean; isolation of all ailing fowls and immediate action in regard to finding out the cause cannot be too strongly impressed upon the poultryman.

When trouble occurs, forward to the Biological Laboratory, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, Ont., a live but sick fowl or in the absence of such a dead bird. In the interval disinfect the quarters, runs, drinking fountains and feed dishes to check the spread of the infectious disease. Disinfect the poultry houses by spraying the interior with a lime-wash solution (50 lbs. stone lime slaked in a barrel of water plus one gallon of a good commercial disinfectant).

KEEP CHILDREN WELL DURING HOT WEATHER

Every mother knows how fatal the hot summer months are to small children. Cholera, infantum, diarrhoea, dysentery and stomach troubles are a part of the time and often a precious little life is lost after only a few hours illness. A mother who keeps Baby's Own Tablets in the house feels safe. The occasional use of the Tablets prevents stomach and bowel troubles, or if trouble comes suddenly—as it generally does—the Tablets will bring the baby safely through the illness. #### War Is a Touchstone

War is a great touchstone of national strength. It is a test of the morale of the civilian population as well as that of the armed forces. One is necessary to the other. We cannot preserve our national morale unless we keep our heads. We are teaching our soldiers order and discipline; it is imperative that we maintain order and discipline in our civil life. We have a clear road before us. We cannot afford to be misled by the tremulous tones of intellectual instability. It is of the most vital importance to protect the nation from the natural enemies of society. Any weakening of the safeguards of civil life is fraught with danger. Morale disintegration will inevitably be followed by national disintegration.—Chicago Tribune.

STOP HEADACHES BEFOREHAND

You never had a headache when you were well.

To keep well is to keep clean, inside.

To relieve headache, and to prevent it, keep the liver active and industrious and the bowels as regular as a clock.

Which Goes to Prove That There Is One Born Every Minute

Far be it from us to hint that anything of the sort could happen in Chicago, yet we see by The Forum that a New York grocer said to Shirley Burns: "I don't like a cash business. I have a high-class trade who pay their bills pretty regularly; they don't bother to itemize them, and if my sales for the month don't come up to my expectations I add enough to their bills to make my profit what I think is ought to be. Only a few people kick on the addition and they are highly pleased when I make the correction."

FOUR WEEKS IN HOSPITAL

No Relief—Mrs. Brown Finally Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Cleveland, Ohio.—"For years I suffered so sometimes it seemed as though I could not stand it any longer. It was all in my lower organs. At times I could hardly walk, for if I stepped on a little stone I would almost faint. One day I did faint and my husband was sent for and the doctor came. I was taken to the hospital and stayed four weeks but when I came home I would faint just the same and had the same pains."

A friend who is a nurse asked me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I began taking it that very day for I was suffering a great deal. It has already done me more good than the hospital. To anyone who is suffering as I was my advice is to stop in the first drug-store and get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before you go home.—Mrs. W. C. The Ford is especially suited to western conditions and your needs.
It is equal to rough roads, big loads and long distances. These are the very tests to which you will put your car.

A Ford will run your errands for repairs, grease, mail and countless other necessities quickly and cheaply. It will save you weeks of time and money. It will be one of your best investments. It will make prairie life more enjoyable. You need a car and need it badly. The Ford is the utility car for the Western Farmer.

Military Service Act, 1917

Explanatory Announcement by the Minister of Justice

THE MILITARY SERVICE ACT has received the assent of the Governor-General and is now part of the law of the land. It will be enforced accordingly, and the patriotic and good sense of the people can be relied upon to support it. Resistance to its enforcement, however, by word or act must and will be repressed, as resistance to any other law in force must be.

Reinforcements under the Military Service Act Immediately required

It is the intention of the Government immediately to exercise the power which the Act confers and to call out men for military service in order to provide reinforcements for the Canadian forces. This is necessary since the military authorities report that the reserves available or in sight for reinforcement will shortly be exhausted unless this step be taken.

First call limited to men between 20 and 34 who were unmarried or widowers without children on July 6, 1917

The present call will be limited to men not in the schedule of exemptions are at least twenty years of age, and were born on or since January 1st, 1883. Of this class all those will be entitled to conditional exemption whose services in their present occupations, agricultural, industrial or other, are essential in the national interest, and whose business or domestic responsibilities are such that serious hardship would ensue if their services be required. Considerable scruples based upon a prohibition of combatant service by the articles of faith of the religious denomination to which men belong will also be respected. The men first required to serve will consequently be those who can be called upon with the least disturbance of the economic and social life of the country.

Civil Tribunals to deal with exemptions

Questions of exemption will be determined, not by the military authorities or by the Government, but by civil tribunals composed of representative men who are familiar with local conditions in the communities in which they serve, who will generally have personal knowledge of the economic and family reasons which those whose cases come before them have had for not volunteering their services and who will be able sympathetically to estimate the weight and importance of such reasons. Provincial Appellate Tribunals constituted from the existing judiciary of the respective provinces will be provided to correct mistakes made by Local Tribunals, and a Central Appeal Tribunal for the whole of Canada, selected from among the present Judges of the Supreme Court of Canada, will be constituted in order that identical principles may be applied throughout the country. In this way every man may rest assured of the fair and full consideration of his circumstances and the national requirements both civil and military.

Proclamation will announce the day

A proclamation will issue calling out the bachelors and widowers referred to and fixing a day on or before which every man must report for service to the military authorities unless he has before that day made an application for exemption.

How to apply for exemption

Applications for exemption may be made by written notice on forms which will be available at every post office, and will be transmitted free of postage. They will not, however, be required to be made in this way, but may be presented by the applicants in person to the exemption tribunals. The cases of those who have given written notice in advance will take precedence, and appearance in person will therefore be likely to involve considerably more inconvenience and delay to the men concerned, so that it is recommended that advantage be generally taken of the facilities for written application.

Ottawa, September 11, 1917.

Exemption Tribunals in all parts of Canada

The local exemption tribunals will be constituted with the least delay possible, consistent with the selection of representative individuals to compose them, and the instruction of the members in their duties. There will be more than one thousand of such tribunals throughout Canada, each consisting of two members, one of whom will be nominated by a Joint Committee of Parliament, and the other by one of the Judges of the existing Courts. Every effort will be made by the wide distribution of tribunals, and by provision where necessary for their sitting in more than one place, to minimise the inconvenience to which men will be put in obtaining the disposition of their cases.

A Registrar will be appointed in each Province, who will be named in the proclamation and to whom enquiries may be addressed. Each Provincial Registrar will transmit to the appropriate tribunal the applications for exemption which have been submitted in advance of the sitting, and men who have sent these in will not be required to attend the tribunals until notified to do so. Other applicants should attend personally on the tribunal without notice.

How to report for service

Men who do not desire to claim exemption will report to the military authorities for service either by mail or in person at any time after the issue of the proclamation. Forms of report by mail will be found in all post offices, and, like applications for exemption, will be transmitted free of postage.

Early report advantageous

No man who reports for service will, although he may be medically examined and passed as fit, be required to go into camp or join a battalion until after a day fixed by the proclamation sufficiently late to permit of the disposition by the local tribunals of most, if not all, of the applications for exemption which may come before them. Thus no advantage will be gained by delaying or disadvantage incurred by prompt report for service on the part of those who do not intend to apply for exemption.

Facilities for immediate medical examination

Immediately upon the issue of the proclamation, medical boards will sit at every mobilization centre for the examination of men who report for service or who, subject to their right within the time limited to apply for exemption, desire to have their physical fitness determined in order to allay any doubt as to their physical condition, or to know definitely and in advance whether there is a possibility of their services being required. Certificates of physical unfitness issued by these Medical Boards will be accepted without any further investigation by exemption tribunals when they sit. Men found physically fit who have not reported for service may nevertheless apply for exemption on any of the prescribed grounds, including even their physical condition if disaffected with the Medical Board's conclusion.

Notice to join the colors

As reinforcements are required, notice to report to the nearest mobilization centre will be given from time to time to the men found liable and passed as fit for service. Disobedience of such notice will render the offender liable to punishment, but punishment for failure to report for military service, or to report subsequently for duty when called upon, will be imposed ordinarily by the civil magistrates; offenders, however, will remain liable for the performance of their military duties notwithstanding any civil punishment which may be imposed and will be liable to military punishment in cases in which civil proceedings are not taken.

Watch for the Proclamation

Notice of the day appointed for the making of a claim for exemption or for report for military service will be published as widely as possible, but, as no personal notice can be given until the individuals called out have so reported themselves or claimed exemption, men possibly concerned are warned to inform themselves with regard to the day fixed, since neglect may involve the loss by them of important privileges and rights.

CHAS. J. DOHERTY,
Minister of Justice.
